

Reserve
1.913
F3Su39

UNITED STATES
DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
LIBRARY

Reserve
BOOK NUMBER 1.913
F3Su39

807146

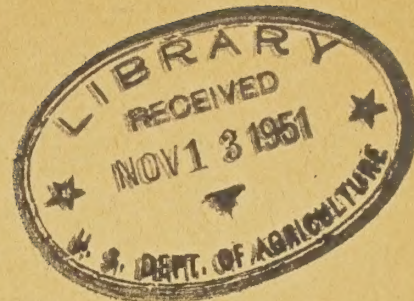

807146

U.S. Dept. Agriculture
Extension Service
Washington 25, D.C.

SUGGESTIONS

USE OF SWEET LAND OF LIBERTY AND AGREE-DISAGREE OUTLINES *

J. P. Schmidt
Professor, Rural Sociology Extension
Ohio State University

1. What, most of all, we are trying to do this week is KNOW YOUR GOVERNMENT. Think in terms of your own effective citizenship and leadership. To be a more effective citizen leader is our aim.
2. Sweet Land of Liberty, the red booklet, tells the story of the development of OUR DEMOCRACY with charts. Do not try to get the whole idea at one glance. Study one or two charts carefully at first. For example, on page 19, chart D24 is our Department of State. On the left at the end of a red line is the Assistant Secretary in charge of Public Affairs. That is Francis H. Russell, who is our speaker Wednesday, June 20. Look at what he does. Read on across about other secretaries.
3. On Friday, June 15, you will visit the Supreme Court of the United States. Look at all the courts on page 6, chart D5. Have this picture in mind when you listen to Justice Clark Friday morning at the Coolidge Auditorium.
4. Look carefully at page 5. At the bottom of the chart, right, the chart is numbered D-12. This warns you that these charts are not numbered straight through in order.
5. Have you used "huddles" and agree-disagree outlines in discussion? If you have - or have not - read carefully pages 2 and 3 of the white Agree-Disagree outline. For our delegates' discussions, starting Saturday at 10:30 a.m., we shall select statements from these outlines. We can't cover all of them. Your leaders will know which ones to use from day to day.

* Prepared for Discussion Groups, National 4-H Club Camp, June 13 to 20, 1951, Washington, D.C.

